One way to interpret the novel is to believe that Golding purposefully created his characters to represent Freud's view of the human psyche. Use this table to identify the representative characters by analyzing their actions and personalities.

PART OF THE PSYCHE	DEFINITION	REPRESENTATIVE CHARACTER	LINES OF EVIDENCE FROM THE NOVEL
ID	The generator of our impulses, the id is the disorganized part of the personality that controls our primal and primitive impulses. The id is the only part of the personality that we are born with. It is the source of our wants, needs and desires, particularly those that are sexual and aggressive.
EGO	The ego negotiates with the id and pleases the superego. It acts as a balancing force between the two - wanting to deliver the basic desires and needs, but also wanting to follow societal and cultural rules and protect you in the long term. The ego could be defined as the home of reason and common sense.
SUPEREGO	The superego keeps us on the straight and narrow. Often described as your conscience - the need to follow the set of rules that have been laid out by society or our parents. The superego is the force that punishes misbehavior with feelings of guilt.
